

PASTOR HISSSED OUT OF PULPIT

The Rev. J. Alford Fisher, Known to Local Congregational Churches, Made to Stop Sermon on "Liberty."

The Rev. J. Alford Fisher, who had a brilliant career in local Congregational pulpits, has, according to a despatch from Cleveland, O., been hissed out of his pastorate of the Franklin Avenue Congregational Church in that city.

He tried to preach a sermon on "Liberty." One of the deacons stood up among the worshippers and told him to stop, but a believer in free speech, the Rev. Mr. Fisher didn't promise to "hold his peace" until he had his say. Then the congregation reinforced the deacon, and despite the battle front of the minister they hissed him and made him quit.

It was a sermon on "Liberty" that started all of this. Fisher's troubles began a week ago, and, of course, when he announced that he would address the congregation on the same subject again there wasn't a vacant pew in the church.

He repeated the statements of his first address, which had been considered objectionable to a certain faction, and then there was no stopping Deacon Thomas Henderson.

"This man came here a lie and a fraud," shouted Henderson with rage. "He represented to us that he was a minister of the Gospel. It was a false pretense."

"Put him out! Put him out!" shouted Henderson's followers.

"Order, I beg you to preserve order!" pleaded the minister, but he might as well have tried to calm the sea.

"Go on, go on," his adherents cried encouragingly, but they were in the minority, and with the singing of the closing hymn Rev. Fisher left the pulpit and retired to his study.

Henderson and his faction put a guard around the gospel stand so that the minister could not return to it, and soon he left the church.

Fisher is well known in Long Island Congregational circles. He accepted a conditional call to Dr. Scudder's church, in Brooklyn, in 1897. In 1902 he was pastor of the Congregational Church at Riverhead, L. I. A Brooklyn reader had him examined in supplementary proceedings. He testified that he received $25 every Monday from his church, and had, at the time of the examination, only nine cents. At the next examination he said that was gone.

Later in that year he was asked to resign his pastorate at Riverhead. There seems to have been a rift between pastor and people," he said. "If this humble dust is unattractive to you, just pay me $30 for the remainder of the year and I will be glad to leave. You cannot be so anxious for me to leave as this humble dust is to get out."

Accident in Central Park. Young Emilio Ausio, Bocker was thrown from his horse into the Central Park reservoir yesterday. "Mount again, sir," suggested his groom. "No, thanks," he replied, "I know when I am well off." He would have been better off and have secured a few tricks, horse by consulting the "Horse and Carriage" department of Sunday World. HATTIE WILLIAMS, WHO WON'T LAUGH AT BERNARD'S JOKES.

DAN DALY'S BROTHER JOINS HIM IN DEATH

Timothy G. Succumbs After Operation for Liver Trouble—Funeral of Actor from Home in Revere, Mass., To-Morrow.

The death of Dan Daly, the comedian, was followed to-day by that of his brother, Timothy G. Daly, a prosperous Boston merchant, at his home in Revere, Mass. He was operated on a week ago for liver trouble, from which he had suffered for over a year.

Four members of the Daly family have died within nine weeks. Dan and his wife, whose death preceded his by two weeks, Edward Merrigan, a brother-in-law, and his son, Edward J. Merrigan.

Daly's body has arrived in Boston and the funeral will be from the family home in Revere to-morrow morning. Many former friends of the dead actor will attend. Delegations from the Lamb Club and other theatrical organizations will be present, and the funeral arrangements are in charge of Edward Rosenbaum, the theatrical manager.

A COMEDienne WHO WON'T LAUGH

The "Funniest Man on the Stage" Has Failed 150 Times to Make Her Smile.

Of all the fun in "The Girl from Kaysa" there's one bit practised nightly at the Herald Square of which the happy and hilarious audience is kept in ignorance. It's a joke at the expense of Hattie Williams, the "fun-some" girl, who sings a song—several songs in fact—and alters a hat with equal ease.

For more than one hundred and fifty times Miss Williams has sung the song and changed the trimming on the hat, likewise for more than one hundred and fifty times Miss Williams has tried to keep from laughing. The "girl" is supposed to be demure. She has passed the giggling age. And she doesn't intend to encourage Hoggishimer with her smiles. In fact she is busy most of the time "quenching" him. Frowns and icy glances for Hoggishimer.

This is all well enough in the play, but Sam Bernard, who is Hoggishimer, long ago swore to have his revenge. "I will make her smile—yes, I will make her smile," he announced.

"Let you a box of cigars you don't," Bernard said something about it's being too bad that the doctor had just

ROSE COGHLAN NOT TO GET DIVORCE

Actress Abandons Action Begun Last April in Montana Against John T. Sullivan—No Reason Given for Withdrawal.

HELENA, Mont., March 28.—Rose Coghlan has decided to remain the wife of John T. Sullivan, the actor. The divorce proceedings instituted by her have been dismissed in the District Court on the application of her attorneys.

Miss Coghlan played here at the Helena Theatre on Friday night. No explanation of the abandonment of her suit has been offered by her or her attorneys. The action was begun April 30, 1903.

FRITZI SCHEFF HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Prima Donna Was Only Slightly Bruised in Railroad Wreck—Hurled Headlong from State-room into Aisle of Car.

CHICAGO, March 28.—With her arms and shoulders bruised and her nerves slightly on edge, Fritzi Scheff, the opera singer, who is now starring in a musical comedy, is thankful to-day that she escaped serious injury in a railroad wreck at Concord, Mich. Her car was so badly smashed that it had to be cut out of the train.

An east-bound express struck the prima donna's train and the impact sent her headlong through the open door of her state-room and landed her in the aisle.

Several other passengers were cut and bruised and a brakeman's head was hurt.

Lots of money saved choosing your Easter gown or Spring apparel here

WITH Easter only five days away a made-to-measure costume is out of the question; but so much the better, for the necessity of choosing a ready-to-wear gown will win hundreds of women over to our method of fitting smart dresses to distinctive, superbly tailor-made apparel—including those bewitching creations from Paris, Vienna and London—equal to and often excelling those costly productions of the exclusive modiste.

Our showrooms were crowded Monday as never in the past. Some of the fashion's followers were there in full force, and with one voice declared that the Simpson Crawford Co.'s Easter display stands pre-eminently the foremost in New York. Not only that, but they made their selections without demurring—expressing surprise over the offering of such wondrously beautiful conceits at the prices we ask.

So much for the Easter wear. But have you looked ahead into the cool Spring days and evenings when you must have one of these smart tailor-made jackets, or to the April showers which call for one of our splendid raincoats? Prices are so much lower for these qualities here than elsewhere that you'll certainly want to make your selection to-morrow.

Story of a jacket and a raincoat. One of those smart Spring creations, made of excellent quality cheviot, two styles, 22 inches long, coat collar with fly front and collarless effect, lined with extra heavy taffeta; best jacket ever offered at $16.50.

The raincoat at $16.50

is made of an excellent quality of material, and though absolutely rainproof is strikingly handsome for street wear—double shoulder cape, coat collar, half fitted back, and belt of self material—$16.50 wouldn't begin to equal it anywhere else.

$22.50 for women's high-class tan jackets of Worumbo covert, lined with heavy self-colored taffeta, coat collar, fly front, trimmed with straps of self material; equal to custom made.

$37.50 for women's pedestrian suits of mannish mixtures, tan, 27 in. coat, collarless, plated Norfolk effect, seven gored skirt, wide flaring, semi-habit back.

$18.50 for women's raincoats in tan or Oxford, novelty capes, coat collar, half-fitted back, new sleeve.

$22.50 for women's fancy raincoats in Oxford, made of fine material, collarless, with cape and tabs of material on shoulder.

$7.75 for pedestrian skirts of Sicilian mohair, in black and blue, seven gored, wide flaring, trimmed with tabs and buttons of self material, inverted plait back.
